Introduction and Instructions

The purpose of the Local Government Pay Equity Act passed in 1984 is to correct historic gender-based wage discrimination in public employment in Minnesota. This is an ongoing process and requires ongoing compliance. The law requires that female classes not be paid consistently below male classes of “comparable value.” Comparable value is the job evaluation rating or points assigned to a job class and the focus of this booklet.

Establishing job evaluation ratings is the first step in the pay equity process. It is important to remember that comparable value or a job evaluation rating does not include seniority or performance; rather it is an evaluation of job content. Job content is measured by the skill, effort responsibility and working conditions required of the job class. In addition, job evaluation should not be interpreted strictly as a rigid “pay for points” system where each point is worth “x” dollars. Pay equity can be achieved and requirements of the law met even though some jobs with the same points do not receive exactly the same pay. The second part of the pay equity process is pay analysis and more information is available on this and compliance requirements on Minnesota Management and Budget’s (MMB’s) Local Government Pay Equity webpage.

The State Job Match System of job evaluation is intended as a straightforward, simple tool to help local governments effectively analyze the jobs in their jurisdictions by matching up job descriptions with descriptions for state jobs that have already been rated. Once the descriptions have been matched, a rating or “job points” can be assigned to the local government job. Job evaluation is not an exact science and if done well, will involve thorough discussion and unbiased decisions. Job analysis must be completed before pay analysis is done.

I. Description of the Job Match System & Website

Job match is a simple, inexpensive way to assign points to jobs in your jurisdiction by matching them to descriptions of state jobs found in this booklet. To make it easier, this booklet is divided into 17 job categories. In each category there are groupings of jobs. Within each group the state titles are listed from lowest to highest ranking. There are five columns on each page as follows:

- Column 1: Titles of jobs typically found in local government. Note: PES Benchmark refers to a “Public Employment Survey” done by the state’s job evaluation consultant, Hay and Associates.
- Column 2: Titles of jobs found in state government.
- Column 3: Job evaluation points assigned to state jobs using the Hay and Associates method of rating jobs.
- Column 4: The range of points for the job that is listed.
- Column 5: Overview and brief job description.

If you cannot find a match in this booklet, check our web site. There are approximately 1800 job class descriptions and point ratings for state jobs on MMB's Classification and Job Evaluation webpage.

The Basics of Job Evaluation

Although the job match method is simpler than many other job evaluation systems, the same basic principles apply:

- You are evaluating job classes, not individuals who hold the job. As you review the list for a possible match, ask yourself how the job would be described if the current employee(s) in the class were all gone tomorrow and you needed to hire someone new.
- You must be as objective as possible. Don't "work backwards" by first determining how much you think classes should be paid and then finding job matches which will fit this category. Guard against sources of bias by having more than one person review job matches and/or by establishing an employee committee to discuss evaluations.
- The more employees are involved in the process of evaluating jobs, the more likely they are to understand and accept the system you use.

II. How To Use The Job Match List

Step 1. Decide who will review jobs for possible matches. This can be done by an individual or by a committee including employees, elected officials and other interested persons. You can guard against bias by having more than one person involved in the job match process.

Step 2. Gather information about job classes in your jurisdiction. This information can come from reading position descriptions, interviewing employees, interviewing supervisors, or from sending a questionnaire to employees and/or supervisors. You may want to have employees and supervisors review and revise job descriptions before beginning the job match process.

Step 3. List all classes in your jurisdiction. Next to each job class begin to identify matches between jobs in your jurisdiction and jobs described in the booklet. Your jobs will probably fall into three categories:

A. Jobs that Match or Nearly Match:

This category will probably account for about 90 percent of the jobs in your jurisdiction. If the job in your jurisdiction matches closely with the state job write the state title and the standard point rating next to the local title.

B. Slotted Jobs:

Although there is no direct match for some jobs, it is often possible to determine where the job fits in the overall hierarchy. Review the jobs which may have already been matched on your worksheet. You may be able to identify jobs which are at the same level as the one you're trying to find a match for and give it the same number of points. If you can't find a job at the same level, you may be able to determine that it fits between two jobs you have already matched. For example, you may have a job which you feel fits between a job with 200 points and another job with 250 points. You could assign a point value then somewhere between 200 and 250.

C. Multi-Function Jobs:

Your job matches with more than one of the jobs on the job match list. If duties outside of the description comprise only about 5% or less of the job, do not consider the job a multi-function job. Instead, match it with the primary function of the job. There are two methods to assign jobs that are multi-functional. The following is an example of a multifunction job and two methods to evaluate that job.

Example: Equipment Operator:

Possible matches on the list

Highway Maint. Supervisor — 213 pts.
Transportation Associate — 156 pts.

Method 1: Match with the Highest Rated Job

In this case the highest rated job is the Highway Maintenance Supervisor with 213 points. The rationale for this is that your job requires the employee to have the skill, effort, responsibility and working conditions of the higher rated job, even though this job is only part of the employee's duties. This option is most appropriate when the employee(s) performs the higher-rated job more than half of the time.

Method 2: Pro-rate the Points According to Time Spent

In this case you would evaluate the amount of time spent on each of the job functions and then multiply that percentage of time spent by the number of points assigned to each function.

Jobs Matched	% of Time		Job Points	Total
Highway Maintenance Supervisor	50%	X	213	107
Transportation Associate	50%	X	156	78
			Total Points	185

This method should not be used for only occasional work in one of the jobs and it becomes less valid if it is used to match a single job with more than two or three state jobs. Also, it would not be valid to add together total original points. For example, you would not add 213 point to 156 points and assign 369 points for the equipment operator position.

When all the jobs have been matched, review the overall ranking of jobs and the points assigned to each job to make sure it makes sense in the context of your organization.

III. Definitions: Types of Supervision

Supervision: Use of the word “supervision” indicates a greater amount of control is exercised over positions in that class than for positions in a class using the word “direction” in the definition. Supervision levels are differentiated by the specificity and application to the technical and administrative details of work assignments. Three standard levels of supervision are used:

Immediate supervision means an employee in the class works under close supervision where the work assignments are well-detailed and well-prescribed by the superior. It does not necessarily mean that the individuals are in close physical proximity to one another. Little opportunity exists to exercise personal initiative, discretion or judgment. The employee is held responsible only for the accurate and proper application of the steps of the well-established work process.

General supervision means an employee in this class is under fairly close supervision administratively, but the worker is given some latitude technically. The assignments and objectives are prescribed, but the methods are not typically reviewed or controlled while the work is in progress. The employee is expected to take the initiative in solving most problems of detail, except those which are new or unusually complex in nature.

Limited supervision provides considerable freedom from both technical and administrative oversight while the work is in progress. In addition to the previously mentioned conditions of general supervision, the employee has: freedom from control over the sequence of assignments, a substantial degree of responsibility for determining what shall be done next, and a substantial degree of independence in planning and organizing the employee’s own work.
